

Un Alma Sentenciada Amor que me desgarras, que me partes de miedo Que a veces te me escapas y de pronto no encuentro Amor de tantas dudas Y remordimientos Que a veces me callo, que a veces me creo. Amor que es tan letal como una puñalada Primero, me hiere después me desangra Amor esta locura que ha desesperado Amor es no tenerte y no haberte olvidado Coro: Toda mi vida se apaga, mi mundo se ciega Amor es pedirte y gritarte que vuelvas Que estoy de bajada, mi alma está en quiebra Hoy quiero pedirte y gritarte que vuelvas Amor es decirte mi amor que vuelvas por favor A que condena y que dolor me has sentenciado A que condena y que dolor me has sentenciado Amor eres tu la verdad de mi tiempo Mi dulce mi amado..mi casa..mi templo! Mi amor mi verdad mi pasión mi intención Mi secreto que viene y que va con el viento Amor eres tu, amar eres tu La noche y tus ojos que son gotas de luz Y escucho tu voz y te siento aquí Y te siento inundándolo todo..aahhh!! Coro: Toda mi vida se apaga, mi mundo se ciega Amor es pedirte y gritarte que vuelvas Que estoy de bajada, mi alma esta en quiebra Hoy quiero pedirte y gritarte que vuelvas Amor es decirte mi amor, que vuelvas por favor Que soy un alma en plena muerte... Pasaje: Un alma que condena si fue sentenciado Un alma que de pena tu has crucificado	a sentenced soul Love that rips me, that tears me apart from the fear That sometimes slips away from me and suddenly I can't find you anymore Love of so many doubts and regrets That I sometimes keep silent, that I sometimes believe. Love that is as deadly as a stab First it wounds me and then it lets me bleed to death Love is this madness that drives someone up to despair Love is not having you and not having forgotten you. Chorus: My whole life fades away, my world goes blind /turns off/goes out Love is asking you and shouting "come back" I am on my knees, my soul is broken Today I want to beg you and shout "come back" Love is telling you, my love, to come back, please To what a sentence and pain you have sentenced me To what a sentence and pain you have sentenced me My love, you are the truth of my time My sweetheart, my darling....my home...my temple! My love, my truth, my passion, my intention My secret that comes and goes with the wind Love is you, loving is you The night and your eyes that are drops of light And I listen to your voice and I feel you here And I feel you inundating everything.....aahhh!! Chorus: My whole life fades away, my world goes blind Love is asking you and shouting "come back" I am on my knees, my soul is broken Today I want to beg you and shout "come back" Love is telling you, my love, to come back, please Cause I am a soul on the verge of dying.. /in full death Pasaje: A soul that condemns because it was sentenced A soul you have crucified of pain
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Un alma que va, un alma que no está Un alma que se pierde en el vacío...ohhh	A soul that is dying, a soul that doesn't exist A soul that gets lost in the void...
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------